

BIG BLUE®

THE NATURAL WAY TO SEXUAL VIGOR*

Roex understands how the quality of your life can be greatly affected by the quality of your sexual experience, and we pride ourselves on bringing superior, natural products to the market that enhance the form and function of your own body's machinery. It is with this mission that we bring you BIG BLUE, our natural blend of herbs and extracts designed to enhance virility, vitality and pleasure. You get the benefits of this special combination of ingredients that work together to increase sexual desire and improve sexual performance and endurance.*

The Purest Ingredients

The secret to BIG BLUE® is its ingredients that naturally increase blood flow and enhance a man's ability to achieve and maintain an erection. The key ingredient is L-arginine (simply "arginine"), which has been shown to increase the amount of nitric oxide released during sexual stimulation. Nitric oxide might sound harmful to you, but it's actually a biomolecule that your body needs to function properly; it has a host of positive effects on the body. In fact, it's required for your ability to get an erection.*

The other ingredients found in BIG BLUE also participate in the nutrient's aphrodisiac effects.

And what's extra special about these ingredients is that they come to us from Mother Nature, and all have been used for centuries among peoples from all corners of the globe who seek natural stimulants and protectors of health. Current science is just beginning to catch up to understanding why these unique and ancient herbs and roots have had such an impact in the history of health medicine around the world. One thing is certain: there is a wealth of products supplied by nature that relate to human arousal and sexual vigor, but have been under-appreciated by Western medicine. Now you can get the highest-quality combination of these products for maximal results.*

Cayenne stimulates blood flow by strengthening the heart, capillaries, and nerves (an increase in blood flow is essential to arousal).*

Muirapuama is a Brazilian shrub with a long history in South American folk medicine as an aphrodisiac and sexual tonic for promoting virility. Chemically, muirapuama is rich in free fatty acids, essential oil, plant sterols, beta-sitosterol and the alkaloid "muirapuamine." You may also see this shrub referred to as Potency Wood. Early European explorers were so enthused by the shrub that they returned to Europe with samples and reports that natives consumed the herb as a drink to enhance sexual desire prior to making love.*

Maca extract is another touted aphrodisiac that dates back to the Incan Empire of Latin America. Maca, a radish-like tuber that grows in high altitudes, is an important dietary staple because it's rich in sugars, protein, starches, and essential minerals. While maca has traditionally been used as a Peruvian herbal medicine for a variety of reasons, from treating menopause symptoms to stimulating the immune system, its chemical components have been under study and point to having aphrodisiac activities.*

Horny goat weed sounds peculiar, doesn't it? What exactly is "horny goat weed"? Another ancient plant from at least 200 BC in China, horny goat weed may be responsible for many different kinds of sex-enhancing effects.

Sarsaparilla is yet another natural and ancient panacea with certain characteristics that make it special for enhancing your sexual experience. The root has been used for centuries in Central and South America as a general remedy to restore, refresh and rejuvenate the body. Because of its properties that aid testosterone activity in the body, sarsaparilla is naturally linked to sexual function and libido.*

Ginseng is a herb you may already be familiar with, but you may not know that Asian populations have used ginseng for centuries to support sexual energy in older people. Some evidence shows that ginseng may generate more nitric oxide from arginine, which leads to increased blood flow and arousal. It's enough to say that ginseng has been used by millions of people for 5,000 years and is the most important herb for men in traditional Chinese medicine. It can impart nothing but benefits to you and your body.*
