

Livalon®

One of the most important keys to overall health lies in the body's ability to remove toxins. The liver is the main component in the body's detoxification process. The average human liver processes one to two quarts of blood per minute from birth to death, yet few people take the time to learn how to maintain proper liver function and health.

*Nutritional Support for the Liver

Supplementing with nutrients such as Silymarin, as well as minimizing liver damaging activities can help support healthy liver function.*

*Supports Healthy Glutathione Levels within the Body

Glutathione is an antioxidant that helps protect cells from toxins such as free radicals. Free radicals are produced through the process of oxidation. Once produced, free radicals start chain reactions that can damage human cells. Glutathione is also needed for the detoxification of methylglyoxal, a toxin produced as a by-product of metabolism. Healthy glutathione levels in the body play an important role in the support of a healthy functioning of the liver.*

*Important for Healthy Digestion

Certain supplements that support proper liver function can also help to increase the secretion of bile in the body. Bile acts to some extent as the body's natural detergent. It plays a key role in the breaking down of fats and thus aids in their absorption in the small intestine. The most important compounds are the salts found in the bile. The salts breakdown fat into droplets that are then better organized for increased absorption. Proper production of bile is essential for healthy digestion.

The Roex® Difference

Our bodies are constantly being bombarded by toxins such as pesticides, auto exhaust fumes, second hand smoke, heavy metals, etc. The liver is the key organ involved in clearing harmful substances from our bodies. The health and vitality of all body systems depends to a large extent on the health and vitality of the liver.
